

Slow to Anger

“Whoever is slow to anger is better than the mighty, and he who rules his spirit than he who takes a city.” Proverbs 16: 32

Good morning, men!

Self-control is a gift from the Heavenly Father. There is absolutely no way to have a stable, powerful life if we are easily angered in our spirits. There is also absolutely no way we can help our children develop self-control, which will help them to have a stable, powerful life in the Spirit, if we do not model this life. So how can we do that?

Submit to Jesus. Ask him to help you today. He is the Prince of Peace. Every once in a great while he got angry with people, but never over the things that anger me (feeling slighted, judged, being defensive, afraid, etc...). He knows our hearts, he knows our baggage, he knows the things that easily set us off ... and he will help us develop self-control over it all. And only he can. Will we let him?

Learning how to control our spirits is better than being a conquering war hero. It is part of what it means to become a mighty man of God. Allowing the Lord to set us free from anger also frees up a great deal of time to help others. Have a powerful walk with the Father, brothers. You are more important to the Father than you know.

In His Peace and Power,

Moe Redding
